DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-92 have been examined.

Response to Amendment

2. This communication is filed in response to Amendment D, filed 2/22/2007.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-33,67-92 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art is silent in managing a person's family related matters and work related matters while prevent the person's business associates from accessing the person's family related matters and while preventing the person's family from accessing the person's work related matters.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claim 34,36-38,40-47,49-55,57-66 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated over Raff ("Raff", US 6,785,868).

As per claim 34, Raff discloses method for managing a combination of family related matters and work-related matters, the method comprising the acts of: communicating personal information related to a family manager's personal life from at least one first device to a host computer (Column 10 lines 11-52); communicating the work information related to the family manager's work life from at least one second device to the host computer (Column 10 lines 11-52), and Communicating the personal information and the work information from the host computer to a third device dedicated to the family manager (Column 10 lines 11-52, Figure 15).

As per claim 36, which is dependent on claim 1, Raff teaches a method, wherein the host computer comprises a public host computer (Raff, Figure 9).

As per claim 37, which is dependent on claim 1, Raff teaches a method wherein the host computer comprises a single host computer (Raff, Figure 9).

As per claim 38, which is dependent on claim 1, Raff teaches a method wherein the host computer comprises at least two host computers (Raff, Column 10 lines 11-26).

As per claim 40, which is dependent on claim 1, Raff teaches a method wherein the devices comprise calendaring capability (Raff, Figure 11B).

As per claim 41, which is dependent on claim 7, Raff teaches a method wherein the first device comprises at least one calendar corresponding to the merger of personal information and work information comprising at least one of a daily merged calendar, a weekly merged calendar, and a monthly merged calendar (Raff, Figure 17).

As per claim 42, which is dependent on claim 7, Raff teaches a method wherein the second device comprises at least one calendar corresponding to the merger of personal information and work information comprising at least one of a daily merged calendar, a weekly merged calendar, and a monthly merged calendar (Raff, Figure 11B item 442).

As per claim 43, which is dependent on claim 7, Raff teaches a method wherein the third device comprises at least one calendar corresponding to the merger of personal information and work information comprising at least one of a daily merged calendar, a weekly merged calendar, and a monthly merged calendar (Raff, Figure 11B item 446).

As per claim 44, which is dependent on claim 1, Raff teaches a method wherein the devices comprise computing capability (Raff, Column 5 line 60 – Column 6 line 10).

As per claim 45, which is dependent on claim 1, Raff teaches a method wherein at least one of the devices comprise a personal digital assistant (Raff, Column 6 lines 25-33).

As per claim 46, which is dependent on claim 1, Raff teaches a method wherein the acts of communicating are performed via an Internet link (Raff, Column 7 lines 17-25).

Claim 47 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 34, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claim 49 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 36, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claim 50,52 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 37, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claim 51,53 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 38, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

As per claim 54, which is dependent on claim 47, Raff teaches a method wherein the first host computer and the second host computer comprise the same computer (Raff, Figure 9, Column 11 line 64 – Column 12 line 44).

As per claim 55, which is dependent on claim 47, Raff teaches a method, wherein the first host computer and the second host computer comprise different computers (Raff, Column 10 lines 11-26).

Claim 57 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 40, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claims 58-63 are individually similar in scope to that of claim 41-43, and are therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Art Unit: 2174

Claim 64 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 44, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claim 65 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 45, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claim 66 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 46, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

4. Claims 35,39,48, and 56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Raff ("Raff", US 6,785,868) in view of Edwards et al ("Edwards", US 2002/0078379).

As per claim 35, which is dependent on claim 34, Raff fails to specifically point out a private host computer. However, Edwards teaches a method, wherein the host computer comprises a private host computer ([0010]-[0012]). Therefore it would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention to combine the private computer of Edwards with the method of Raff. Motivation to do so would have been to provide a secure way of accessing applications, programs, and capabilities of the device.

As per claim 39, which is dependent on claim 34, Raff-Edwards teaches a method wherein the devices comprise e-mail capability (Edwards, [0010] lines 1-15).

Claim 48 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 35, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claim 56 is individually similar in scope to that of claim 39, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Response to Arguments

The Examiner attempted to contact the Attorney to setup an interview. Given the scheduling conflicts of both the Examiner and the Attorney, no interview has taken place. The Examiner invites the Applicant's representative to call upon receiving this office action to set up an interview if there are any questions regarding the current application.

Applicant argues in respect to claim 34 that Raff fails to teach the claimed limitations. Specifically the Applicants argue that family managers share each other's personal information, but the work related information for each family manager remains segregated. Unlike other claims pending, nowhere in the claim language does it point out segregation of any information. The way the claim reads now, all information can be sent to all of the devices and the limitations would still be met. With respect to Lui, this reference is no longer applied and the arguments have been considered but are moot.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1-33, 67-92 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
